

Enocor Strengthens Factory Security, Safety, and Efficiency Through Partnership with Itec Edge

Enocor, a South African SME specialising in stainless-steel bottling, has significantly enhanced its operational security, workplace safety, and production oversight through a strategic partnership with Itec Edge.

Enocor Case Study

As a growing manufacturer that also handles bottling for external companies, Enocor recognised the need for a comprehensive solution to protect personnel, monitor production processes, and ensure the integrity of finished goods. The company turned to Itec Edge for a practical, scalable, and cost-effective surveillance system that could be deployed with minimal disruption to operations.

Initially considering a smaller system, Enocor was introduced to a more advanced Hikvision CCTV solution by Itec. The final implementation featured high-resolution 4MP cameras with built-in microphones, enabling both visual and audio monitoring across critical zones of the facility. This setup not only enhances perimeter and internal security but also supports, health and Safety Compliance, Production Oversight, as well as Quality Control and Finished Goods Monitoring.

Leveraging Hikvision's smart analytics, Enocor now benefits from features like motion detection, intrusion alerts, and people counting, all contributing to improved operational awareness and decision-making. The system also supports remote access, allowing management to monitor operations from anywhere, enhancing responsiveness and control.

"Itec Edge didn't just sell us cameras, they delivered a solution that transformed how we manage our factory," said Christo Wessels, Managing Director at Enocor. "Their team understood our challenges and designed a system that improves security, safety, and productivity."

By combining advanced technology with tailored service, we help clients like Enocor achieve operational excellence.

Despite the complexity of the factory layout and challenging cable runs, Itec ensured a smooth rollout with minimal downtime. Their flexible in-house financing model made the solution accessible without compromising on quality or performance.

"This project reflects our commitment to empowering South African businesses with intelligent, future-ready security infrastructure," said Sean Moran,

Managing Director at Itec Edge. "By combining advanced technology with tailored service, we help clients like Enocor achieve operational excellence."

With this implementation, Enocor has not only secured its facility but also laid the foundation for smarter, safer, and more efficient manufacturing, positioning the business for continued growth and customer satisfaction.
